ald property and 5 per cent, of the purchase price of each and all of said ales.

Also that the defendant, holding a friendly relation towards Mrz. Porter, was guilty of a breach of trust; that he built a barn upon his own property and gave a deed from Mrs. Porter to Louis V. Enranger in payment; that the defendant procured deeds of lots from Mrs. Porter to Elia A. Dillon and Matthias B. Valentine, and that the same were subsequently conveyed to the defendant's wife without consideration, and that the defendant also took title to one lot in the name of his wife directly from Mrs. Porter without receiving any consideration from his wife, and was dealing with the property of plaintiff's decedent for his own benefit and did not account for the same.

Also referee holds that just how Noxon came into possession of the deeds of Mrs. Porter does not appear, but he had her deeds and property in his possession and under his control, and received a consideration therefore; that he has not accounted for the same, and that he did act as agent for Mrs. Porter in the saie of her property.
